JOSEPH CLAYTON, Publisher of the Spectator, and General Newspaper and Advertising Agent, $20, Strand, London, respectfully annonnees to proprietors of colonial journals, and the resident colonial gentry, that he is able to supply them with the Spectator, Colonial Genetie, and every other London and country newspaper in Great Britain, by the earliest conveyance after the appearance of each publication.

J. Clayton has been induced to pay particular attention to this branch of the newspaper business, in consequence of the complaints of the colonial press in not being supplied with English newspapers with that regularity and despatch which is necessary to the success of a well-managed colonial newspaper establishment.

It will be absolutely necessary to accompany each order by payment of six or twelve months papers in advance, or a reference to some firm in London for payment at the expiration of the twelve months; in which case one halfpenny extra will be charged on each paper.

J. Clayton trusts that his councarion with

J. Clayton trusts that his connexion with the Speciator newspaper, as printer and publisher, from its commencement in 1828, will be considered a sufficient guarantee for the proper application of any lunds paid in advance for English newspapers and periodicals.

The prices are the same as charged in Loudon; therefore all poetage or extra charges incurred in the transit must be paid by the parties at the time the order is given.

It will be desirable in all cases where any advantage exists in the mode of conveyance over the ordinary means of transmission, that gentlemen, desirous of availing themselves of such advantage, should point out clearly in what way such peculiarity can be rendered available for the purpose of accelerating the despatch of such newspapers.

"UNION IS STRENGTH,"

AT least so says the proverb, and so most people think. Not so Dr. Lang. He seems to be of opinion that union is weak-ness, and that strength lies in division. Hence he intends to move, to day, "that an humble address be presented to HER MAJESTY will be graciously pleased to direct that the requisite steps may be taken for the speedy and entire separation of the district of Port Phillip from the territory of New South Wales, and its

Considering what an old practitioner the Docton is in the art of "reading and writing the English language," we wonder that he did not make his motion say what he meant; for it is certain he cannot mean what it says. He means that the Government of the Port Phillip district should be separated from that of New South Walea; but his resolution proposes that the district should be cut off from the territory, be removed by some unnamed mechanical process to a more convenient spot, and there be erected into a "separate and independent colony." A very curious operation this would be; but rather beyond sonable wishes, in the emergencies of Chamber the compass of the Council's powers.

And what is to be gained to Port But we desire especially to bear our testimony on more general and public grounds, to the unfinching exertions and anxious solisioned distinction of being "a separate and independent colony;" but beyond this it, a host of appointments from home, and a heavy drain upon its exchequer. The Address, if our Council be unwise sonough to carry it, will no doubt be restoned to most cordially and most promptly; for it will throw into the hands of the minister a golden ball of patronage to the magnitude of the minister a golden ball of patronage to the compassion of the council's powers.

But we desire especially to bear our testimony on more general and public grounds, to the unfinching exertions and anxious solision to be adopted, as was also the petition mously adopted, as was also the petition from house, which have characterised the whole of the above resolutions were unanimously adopted, as was also the petition from the whole of the above resolutions were unanimously adopted, as was also the petition from the whole of the above resolutions were unanimously adopted, as was also the petition from the whole of the above resolutions were unanimously adopted, as was also the petition from the whole of the above resolutions were unanimously adopted, as was also the petition from the whole of the above resolutions were unanimously adopted, as was also the petition from the whole of the above resolutions were unanimously adopted, as was also the petition from the whole of the above resolutions were unanimously adopted, as was also the petition from the whole of the above resolutions were unanimously adopted, as was also the petition from the time. The principal special principa of the minister a golden ball of patronage too precious to be rejected. He will forth-with have places at his disposal which will enable him to provide comfortably for a score or two of his favourite hangers-on. To one he will give the appointment of Governor, to another that of Colonial Secretary, to another that of Chief Jusnother that of Attorney-General to another that of Solicitor-General, to another that of Surveyor-General, to another that of Auditor General, &c., &c., &c., &c., &c. Delightful
What minister could hesitate for a momen to grant a boon which would return so richly into his own bosom? And how would the Port Phillippians be to His Lordship for sending out so respect-His Lordship for sending out so respectable an accession to their society, with orders that the new functionaries should be in receipt of such salaries as might enable them to live in style! What an interchange of good offices! What a reciprocation of smiles and thanks! The pression of smiles and thanks! The Eight Honorable SECRETARY grateful for the privilege of appointing; the Phillippians for the privilege of paying.

But while the "separate and independent colony" would gain these manifold advantages, both the new colony and the old would lose the advantage indicated by our proverb motto—the political strength of political union. To dismember the relief as it now exists, would be to colony as it now exists, would be to weeken its influence with the Home Go rernment, and its power to assert consoli-lated rights. Each of the two separate les would be too weak to wrest con-us from the minister which could be won by their undivided strength. And it appears to us that the proposed or repeal of the union" would be as unsatural as it would be impolitic. The ple are of one race; the country is one territory; our pursuits and resources, ou habits and our interests, are all identical Then why should we split? Why antie the bundle of sticks? The proposition is no wild and chimerical, that we may exclaim with the late Mr. Camning, "Resent the Union ? Restore the Heptarchy!"

After the above was written, the Mast-land Mercury of Saturday, came to hand, and from it we make the following extract from an article on the Expenditure for Public Works, which is founded upon a few days since. Surely, in the vast quantity of "bunkum" that is sure to be uttered this afternoon, no one will pretend to say that, so far as expenditure for public works goes, the district of Port Phillip has not been much more liberally dealt with the district of Hunter's River:—

The return was laid upon the table on the th July, and ordered to be printed on the 24th; but it does not been out the Doctor's assertion, as the following abstract will show:

Amount expended in the Bunter River district, containing, in 1843, a population of about 24,000 and 144,000 and a grain the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the the remainder of the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the planting of the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony, containing, in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of about 14,000 and the colony containing in 1843, a population of abo

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New South Wales.
We, the undersigned Attorneys, Solicitors, and Proctors, of the Court over which your Honor has presided for the last sixteen years, having met together to express our regret and sympathy on the occasion of the illness which has suspended your judicial labours, are desirous of placing these feelings on record, together with a statement of the reasons which give them peculiar force in the present instance.

As practitioners of the Supreme Court, we owe your Honor a debt of personal gratitude for uniform courtesy and impartiality, and for an unexampled readiness at all times to sacrifice your personal convenience to all our reasonable wahes, in the emergencies of Chamber business.

But we desire especially to bear our tesmore deeply impressed with the magnitude of the labour imposed upon you; especially as we ourselves know that judicial business was not allowed to fall into arrear during the ses-

we ourselves know that judicial business was not allowed to fall into arrear during the sessions of the Legislature.

We further bear in mind, that both classes of dutics are, relatively to their apparent magnitude and results, far more laborious in this colony than in England, where the guidance of beaten tracks and the spontaneous aid of men of comparative leisure, convert many tasks of great apparent research into a mere exercise of the judgment on materials ready provided.

Fully convinced that great exertions in the public service are the sole cause of the present necessity for their suspension, we feel justified in expressing a hope that you will not only be allowed such leave of absence as will fully meet the recommendations of your medical advisers, but that your retirement will be unaccompanied by any diminution of the emoluments which, under the circumstances, you have fairly earned by anticipation, having, in truth, crowded into past years that amount and worth of labour which, without laying yourself open to any blame, and still retaining the blessing of health, you might have spread over a much more extended period.

That this period may yet be ultimately extended by your Honor's perfect restoration, through the benefit to be derived by a temporary retirement, to many following years of health and office, is the carnest hope of Your Honor's faithful and obedient servants, [Sixty-four signatures]

Marixens' Church, built in connexion with the Sydney Bethel Union, will be held this day. It is known to the inhabitants generally that service has been regularly performed by the Rev. T. M. Adam, for several years past, on board a vessel moored off the Circular Quay; and it must afford sincere pleasure to the friends of scamen to know that in this important port, a suitable and well-built church is erected for their especial benefit. The sermon in the morning will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Ross, and that in the afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Draper. In the evening a public meeting, to promote the objects of the Bethel, will be held in York-street Chapel. On Sunday next, the opening services will be continued, when the Rev. John Saunders and the Rev. Dr. Lang will preach.

For Classes.—A public meeting was held at the City Theatre yesterday evening, pursuant to previous announcement, for the purpose of considering the propriety of petitioning the Governor to afford relief to the working classes by a system similar to that proposed by Mr. Wentworth in the Legislative Council on Thursday last. The following were the resolutions passed by the meeting:—1st. Moved by Mr. Driver, and seconded by Mr. Carruthers.

"That as it has been proved beyond doubt, that a large amount of urgent distress exists amongst the operative classes of the colony, and that for a long period, notwithstanding casual and temporary assistance from the Government, that distress has continued to exist and increase, until by the decreased expenditure of the consuming classes, the colonial revenue has been reduced in the proportion of one third. Resolved—That it is the imperative duty of the Government to adopt some broad and comprehensive measure of relief, in the development of the wast resources of this colony, in order that a permanent improvement in the condition of the working classes may be effected, without any direct infringement on the funds raised by taxation for the purpose of revenue."

2nd. Moved by Alderman Maedermott; seconded by Mr. Coyle: "That as the middle and working classes, including what may be denominated the yeomanry of a country, constitute the great bulk of its population; and as it is by these classes alone its natural resources can be developed, national wealth accumulated, and national independence secured, Resolved—That it is incumbent on the Government to bestow the deepest consideration on any measure calculated to improve the social and physical condition, and to elevate the moral, intellectual, and religious character of this important class." 3rd. Moved by Mr. Wells, and seconded by Mr. Thurlow: "That as the disposal of the funds arising out of the sales of waste lands in the colony, to the purpose of immigration, as well as to the establishment of those political, educational, statistical review of the grants of land already made, and the extent of good land in the several districts still open for settlement, with the object of proving the justice of the claim which the working classes were then making, and the facility with which their demands might be acceded to. The some course of argument was much followed by other speakers, and Mr. Currie in particular pointed out the success which had attended a similar experiment with the Hottentots at the Cape of Good Hope, and the German settlers in South Australia. The business of the meeting was commenced at seven o'clock, at which time the Mayor took his seat in the chair, and was closed at a little before nine, after the customary vote of thanks had been tendered to the Right Worshipful gentleman, for the manner in which he had performed his Chairman's duties. Previous to the commencement of business, letters were read from Mr. Wentworth and Dr. Lang, stating their inability to attend, but expressing at the same time their perfect concurrence with the objects of the meeting, and readiness to further those objects elsewhere, as far as laid in their power. A letter from Alderman Flood was also read, expressing his assent to the objects of the meeting, and enclosing £1 towards paying the expenses incidental to the getting of it up. The theatre was crowded to excess.

Court or Requests, Sydney.—On Friday last several of the stallholders in the George-street market appeared in this Court as defendants in certain actions which the Corporaration brought against them for arrears of stall rent Mr. Brenan conducted the defence, and Mr. Nichols, as City Solicitor, appeared for the Corporation. The proof for the plaintiff's case was, that in the early part of the year 1843 the Corporation put the market stalls up by suction, at which sale the defendants be ame purchasers, and subsequently entered into leases

a Corporation put the market stalls up by suction, at which sale the defendants became purchasers, and subsequently entered into leases for the remainder of the year at the rents therein mentioned; at the expiration of the year the defendants refused to pay any more rent, on the ground that the sums charged by the Corporation were contrary to law, inasmuch as an amount was fixed by the Act 2 W.IV., No.
16. The occupation by the defendants, from the lst of January to the 31st of May, 1844, was proved, and the sum sucd for was for five months' rent, at the rate of the former leases, on the ground that the defendants had held over, and not determined their tenancy to the Corporation. Mr. Brensan in a very leng by address, took a series of objections, and among others, that a Corporation could not sue for use and occupation. and that no more than 1s. 8d.
a week could be charged for each s'all until a by-law had been duly made altering that rate.
After Mr. Nichols had replied, the Commissioner overruled the objection, and, under his direction, the assessor found for the plaintiff for the full amount sucd for. The Commissioner intimated that if the defendants wished it, he would allow them to appeal to the Supreme Court for its jopinion on the points of law?

Last week, a fatal accident occurred at the Ovens River. It is difficult to obtain facts in detail here, unless you witness an occurrence; but the following circumstance may be relied on as correct, I believe. The man who drives the mail-cart from Port Phillip, on that portion of the road which passes the Ovens, found, on his arrival at the usual ford, that the stream was impassable without imminent risk, from its swollen state by a sudden and heavy fall or rain. Being a good swimmer, h. pushed into the torrent; but, from inability to trace the line of the ford, he unconsciously diverged into the deep bed of the river, and was immediately drowned. The horse and cart reached the opposite bank in safety, and from the absence of any complaint on the part of our Postmaster I presume the mails were delivered safely in Gundagai.

opposite bank in safety, and from the absence of any complaint on the part of our Postmaster I presume the mails were delivered safely in Gundagai.

Another accident of a very distressing character has also occurred, at Bego, the station of E. Crispe, Esq., in the Tumut district. Mr. Crispe was removing his stock to another station, and encamped for the night on a creek about seven miles distant from Bego. One of his servants, a married man, was accompanied by his wife and an only child, a little girl of about three years old; at the bivouse, about sunset, the child playfully told her parents she would go back to Bego, and started along the track in that direction. No notice was taken of her absence (owing to the bustle and hurry of encamping) for some time, ind in the interval Mr. Crispe had strolled away; when the child was missed, the impression was that she must be with that gentleman; but on his being found by the father, and ascertaining that Mr. Crispe had not seen her, the alarm and distress of the parents may be more readily conceived than described. All parties proceeded in search—for night was closing in, and with it a heavy fall of snow and sleet; Mr. Crispe need every exertion to discover the infant, but without success; the waterholes were dragged, and the forest closely examined, but no trace of the little sufferer could be discovered. A tempestuous and intensely cold night passed away—and with the light the scarch was renewed, with the like success, and the unfortunate parents were compelled to adopt the distressing conviction that their infant was gone for ever Another night wore away—and on the second day, Mr. Watson, of the Mannero, on his way to aid in the search, discovered the body of the little sufferer lying beneath a tree, rigid and stark; having no doubt perished during the first night of her absence, in the module in the beginning of the year, a child about the same el child was missed, the impace-ion was that she included the impace-ion was that she included the impace-ion was that she included the included the Acoust 17.—So little of late at all interesting have we had to communicate in the quiet and retired di-trict of the Illawarra, that we have abstained from forwarding you any report for some time back. The weather, that had previously been bleak and boisterous, as might have been expected at this period of the year, which, as regards the seasons, corresponds with the month of February in the northern half of the globe, has to-day turned for rain, with every appearance of a continuance of it, which is much to be desired, as from the long continued drought the earth had become perfectly hard, so much so as to put a stop to ploughing operations; the present rain, therefore, has come most scasonably, this being the general spring seed time of the year when ample employment is given to the farmer, and the ground has to be prepared for the different grasses.

Of cattle sales there has been an unusual dearth for some time back, which may be attributed not so much to any unwillingness on the part of owners to realize, is to the difficulty of effecting sales: for many holders of stock would be glad to sell, could they meet with purchasers at reasonable prices.

The District Council was convened on Wednesday last for the purpose of considering upon some equitable mode of compensation to the officers whose appointments by the Council will now, it seems, be rendered no longer necessary, in consequence of the result of the debate in the Legislative Council on the District Councils' Bill; and there is no doubt, we should imagine, but a fair and reasonableform promise will be officered them by the gentlemen should imagine, dut a fair and reasonable composing the Council for the redemption of their agreements.

On Wednesday last, the 14th instant, the steamer Timear, Captain Allan, commenced her trips the Wollongong at the reduced rates of 6s. and 3s. for faires, and 7s. and 10s. for freight; which act of rivalry and opposition on the part of the Hunter River Company may very likely be complained of by the proprietors of the Sophia Jane as an encroactment upon their established trade; but when it is remembered that, in disregard of the low prices obtainable at market for all artices of agricultural produce, and in defance of repeated remonstrances and the pressure of the times, the high rates of the Wollongong boat were notwithstanding so long maintained and insisted upon, the competition of another boat might easily have been foreseen; and the inhabitants of the town, and the settlers of the district, have good cause to rejoice at being at length relieved from the high charges they have too long been subjected to for passage money, and the conveyance of their produce to the Sydney market.

The Bulli Mountain road, we are happy to inform you, is now the chosen route of all squestrians and foot travellers from here to Sydney; the journey is easily made in eight hours; the inhabitants, we think, and others who have occasion to journey to the city, might to feel much indebted to Captain Westmacott for his praiseworthy exertions, in thus shortening the distance to the capital, and saving to the traveller's expense.

Although not much more than three months have elapsed since the last race meeting at Wollongong, there is again announced in the nublic prints a second one, to take place for irree days at the latter end of the month, and on looking over the annount of prizes, it will be seen that upwards of £100 is advertised as the seen that upwards of £100 is advertised as the

COLONIAL ARCHITECT'S DEPARTMENT.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.
Gentlement,—Having seen by your paper of Friday last that a petition had been presented to the Legislative Council on behalf of a number of mechanics, signed by four hundred and seventy persons, staing that they had reason to believe that the sum voted by the Council for giving employment to such of them as were in want of it, had been misspent.

I beg leave to state that many of the signatures thereto have been obtained under the following misrepresentations, viz.: to some that the petition was for the purpose of praying for a further extension of employment and advancement of wages; to othere that it was for the purpose of obtaining small portions of land that the unemployed might find means of subsistence.

Many of these persons are willing to come forward and prove that they were ignorant of the nature of its contents, relying upon the good faith of the parties who obtained them; and that it never was their intention of charging the Colonial Architect with inefficiency or neglect of duty; on the contrary that the amount of labour performed was more than adequate to the remuneration received, which can be proved if required.

GUNDAGAI.

To the Editors of the Sydney Moraing Herald.
GENTLEMEN,—In reference to a letter from your correspondent at Gundagai, wherein he alludes to the existing tallow mania, I feel myself called upon to make one or two observations on the subject, which I hope you will give insertion to in your widely-circulated journal.

Your correspondent declares himself an advocate for the boiling-down—but says: "Graziera must themselves put their ladle to the pot, and themselves boil down their surplus stock on their own establishments." He further adds: "It is scarcely credible what an amount of work can be done in this way by one pair of hands, with one small boilet, and three or four blacks."

Without wishing to convey any offence, I cannot but pronounce such an idea as utterly ridiculous and absurd. How a person can give publicity to such nonsense, after all that has been said and written on this subject, is really surprising to me. Had your correspondent taken the trouble to read the frequent remarks, which through the medium of your valuable journal have from time to time been made public, on the subject of getting up tallow for the English market, he never would have entertained such farrical ideas, much less have let them go forth to the public.

During my late stay in Sydney, I had the opportunity of witnessing the inspection of two different lots of tallow, got up in the manner above proposed. The result was, as might have been expected, a decided failure.

In lieu of the casks presenting a solid body of clean and firm tallow, the contents proved to consist of an amalgamation of tallow, particles of meat, skin, and a variety of cartilaginous substances, intermixed with a fair proportion of maggots!

One of these lots of tallow (if this misnomer is autilizable to it) was the ureduce of a num-to the success of his labours and study in the art of making fireworks, adapted for the army and naval purposes, having just completed Pive Shells, from twelve inches and upwards; also two Rockets. The dreadful properties of these shells surpass human belief, one being sufficient to sink a vessel of a large tonnage, and sweep the decks of every soul. Each shell is a different invention, equally destructive by sea or land. The Rockets are to be played from a tube, being an entirely new invention, which will bore its way through a ship's side or stone wall, there not being the slightest possibility of cutting them out, as is the case with others—these possessing the awful property of being sudden death to those who would attempt to approach them.

Property in such a respectable neighbourhood is very seldom to be met with, and it is well to remind parties desirous of erecting Buildings upon these Allotments, that STONE may be had in abundance close at hand, while the immediate vicinity to the water affords a facility for the conveyance of timber. The present cheap labour and low price of materials, combined with the above advantages, must hold out an additional encouragement to parties wishing to become the proprietors of Country Residences suited to their own taste and convenience.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT. THE WILL PORGERIES.

important case, which has excite great interest, was partially gone into or Wednesday, when the different indictments with which the prisoners were charged were read over, and to which they al were read over, and pleaded not guilty.

On Thursday, this case was resumed, and Barber, Fletcher, and Dorey, were placed at the bar. The following counsel the case. For the appeared to conduct the case. For the Crown, the Attorney-General, Mr. Clarkson, Mr. Bodkin, and Sir John Bayley Mr. Wilkins and Mr. Parry defended the prisoner Barber; Mr. Geaves and Mr. Ballatine appeared for Fletcher; Mr. E. James for Mrs. Dorey.

After a vain edeavour on the part of the unsel for Mr. Barber to have his case tried separately from the rest, all the wit-nesses were desired to leave the Court and the Attorney-General said he had to entreat the patience of the jury while he stated the facts that it was necessary for them to know, in order to come to a sou and just conclusion upon the charge against the prisoners at the bar. It is unneces-sary to go into the details of the proceed ings, but a recapitulation of the broad charge may be necessary to collect the following portion of the Attorney-General's address to the Jury will gain our object :— By a law introduced some twenty, thirty, or forty years ago, if stock had remained without any claim on the part of any one, it was, at the end of ten years, transferred to the Commissioners for the reduction of to the Commissioners for the reduction of the national debt; but care was taken that, when so transferred, it should be still open for any one, lawfully interested, to make the claim, and such person had the means of prosecuting his claim in the proper quarter. The three prisoners at the bar—there was a fourth included in the indictment, who, he believed, died in the year 1841—were Mr. Wm. Henry Barber, an attorney, who had been in practice, he thought, in Bridge street, Blackfriars; Joshua Fletcher, a person certainly never suspected till this inquiry certainly never suspected till this inquiry Georgiana Dorey, the wife of a respec-table tradesman in Oxford-street; and the charge against them was, that Susan nah Richards, deceased, published forged bond, to obtain by that means the possession of certain stock paid over to the Commissioners for the reduction of the national debt; and the other persons were charged as accessaries, lending their assistance in some way to the commission of the crime. John Stewart, he said, was or the crime. John Stewart, he said, was a Scotchman, and a gardener in the service of Mr. Strode, of Mariborough. He died in 1827, leaving £1500 in the Three per Cent. Long Annuities, which had been in 1836 paid over to the Commissioners. In 1840, Fletcher, calling himself Robert Lones was at that place making inquiries. Jones, was at that place making inquiries into the circumstances and history of Jones, and, having established a cor-respondence, returned. Barber, then calling himself Charles Peckham, Esq., calling himself Charles Peckham, Esq., with his (Barber's) own address, made similar inquiries. Soon after, Mrs. Richards, an old infirm woman, mother of Mrs. Dorey, was placed by Barber in lodgings at Camberwell, as Miss Stewart, and there this old lady obtained letters of administration as sister of John Stewart, of Marlborough, to the property in the hands of the Commissioners, alleging that she was in America at the time of her brother's death, and did not time of her brother's death, and did not know of it till her return. Here came in play the part which Fletcher had acted when he assumed the name of Jones, for a document was found in the possession of one prisoner, and in the writing of another stating that a Mr. Jones, of New York, had promised the old lady to go down to Marlow, and enquire after her brother. Then Griffin made affidavit that he knew Miss Stewart and her brother, and heard them call each other by the names of brother and sister. Griffin himself would prove that this was false, and perhaps that Barber and Fletcher knew it to be so. Miss Stewart's affidavit had stated her to papers belonging to the late John Stewart, and was referred by him to his solicitors, Marylebone was kept back. The prisouer Barber identified Miss Stewart at the bank, and Mr. Hill, a broker, identified Mr. Barber. It was found that the broker had aid the amount of arrears, £630 in a cheque, and was surprised, when he called to rectify his error, to find that the cheque had been immediately changed for gold. These facts, with a statement made by These facts, with a statement made by Mrs. Dorey, would enable the jury to do justice in the case.

The officers of the Prerogative Court dentified the papers, and the clerks of the Bank of England proved the transfer of stock. Hyatt, the innkeeper of Marlow, and a person named Windsor, then proved that Fletcher as Jones, and Barber as Dablers and the stocker as Jones, and Barber as Peckham, had made enquiries of them concerning Stewart. Sarah Hankes proved that at Mrs. Dorey's request, she received letters addressed to Mr. Jones, and forwarded them to Mrs. Richards. Emma Hartnell proved that Fletcher brought Miss Steward to her at Camberwell. Mr, Potts was examined as to the drawing up the deeds; and Mr. Macpherson, a Scotch clerk of session, to whom Miss Stewart had written for a marriage certificate be-tween Robert and Jane Stewart, about 1760. At five o'clock the Court again

The trial was resumed on Friday, and after a great mass of evidence was taken the case for the prosecution was closed.

Mr. Greaves, on behalf of Fletcher said it was now his duty to show that ther was no forgery. It was not a forgery within the meaning of the statute, nor in the meaning of the indictment. It was not set forth in what way the bond was forged; but alleged generally that it was so, and they were therefore bound to prove that the whole was forged. According to the statute, in order that the document onsidered a forgery, it must should be considered in the was a valid in-invalid; but, in fact, this was a valid in-atrument as against two of the parties, Pletcher and Griffin. He submitted that tion of fraud was two remote; as far as the Treasury and the Back were concerned, to bear out the indictment of an intention to defraud either of these bodies. There was no such proximate a particip intention as was necessary to be proved in prisoners.

order to sustain the present prosecution. There were no cases reported which were completely analagous to this : but he sul mitted that there would be no doubt upor the law of the matter, that the intenti to defraud the parties named in the indictment must be immediate.

Mr. Ballantine briefly followed on the same side, and the Court adjourned to same side, and the Court adjourned to Saturday.

Mr. Wilkins then made a powerful appeal on the part of Barber, followed by Mr. James, on behalf of Mrs. Dorey. The Attorney-General replied on the case of Barber, and the learned Judge summed up in that case alone, which concluded Saturday's presenting.

Saturday's proceedings.

After a luminous summing up on Mon day, by Baron Gurney, the Jury retired; and were absent for a quarter of an hour, when they returned the following verdict; Barber, Not Guilty; Fletcher and Mrs. Barber, Con-Dorey, Guilty. TUESDAY.

At the sitting of the Court this morning, the prisoners Barber and Fletcher, Mrs. Dorey, William Sanders, and Lydia Sanders, his wife, were placed in the dock to take their trial upon the indictment charging them with the forgery of a will purporting to be the last will and testa-ment of one Anne Slack. Barber seemed to have gained confidence from the result of the former trial; he evinced the utmost calmness and self-possession, and appeared to be in better spirits. Mrs. Dorey wept bitterly on being brought to the bar. She has altered much in appearance within the last few days, and looked extremely ill, All the prisoners were accommodated with seats in the dock.

ber of counts varying the description of the charge.

Mr. Wilkins, with Mr. Parry, again appeared for Barber; Mr. Greaves for Fletcher; and Mr. Stone and Mr. Phinn for Wm. Sanders and his wife. Mr. Erle stated the case for the procecution. It appeared that the father of Miss Slack died about the year 1815, leaving a Mr. Hulme as one of his exe-cutors. The affairs were not wound up until 1829, when Mr. Hulme invested certain property in the public funds in the name of Anne Slack, of Smith-street, Chelsea, spinster; namely, £6600 in the Three per Cents. Reduced, and £3500 in the Three per Cent. Consols. It appeared that Miss Slack had the most unbounded confidence in Mr. Hulme, who was her mandian and shadow for the street of the street o guardian, and she drew from time to time just what money she wanted. On the death of Mr. Hulme she had to receive the dividends herself. She was unaware, however, that the £3,500 Consols stood in her name, and received the dividend on the Three per Cent. Reduced only.
The consequence was, that no dividends were received on the Three per Cent.
Consols after 1832, and at the end of ten years both the stock and the dividends which had accrued due thereon, but which she had inadvertently passed over, were transferred into the names of the Comtransferred into the names of the Com-missioners for the reduction of the national debt, according to the ordinary practice in in such cases. On the 16th of March, 1843, a will was produced at Doctor's Commons, purporting to be that of Miss Slack. On the 24th and 25th of March probate was obtained, and the stock and dividends subsequently transferred back into the name of Miss Slack; and this will would undoubtedly be proved to be a forged will. This part of the charge he should be able to make out peculiarly clear, because he should call before them this forged instrument purported to be.
After calling upon the jury to discharge from their minds all that they might have beard before they entered the Jury box in respect of this case, and to judge of its merits only to the evidence which should be laid before them, the Learned Counsel proceeded to lay before the Jury a short narrative of the circumstances connected with the transaction, which would be pro-ved in evidence before them, and then went written to Captain Poskett, for the purpose of procuring particulars relating to the ex-ecutors under the will of the late father of Miss Slack, and as to whether Miss Slack spelt her Christian name with or without a final c. He next came to the registry of the death of "Anne Slack, of Southterrace, Pimlico," by the prisoner Fletcher, in the name of "Robert Hart, of James-street, Commercial-road East." In the first place, there was no such place as South-terrace, Pimlico; there was a Southplace, but no such person as Anne Slack had ever lived there; neither was there any such street as James-street, Commercial-road East, nor could it be discovered that any such person as Robert Hart had resided in that neighbourhood. It appeared, therefore, that the fictitious registry of a fictitious death had been brought about by the prisoner Fletcher, in the manner which he had mentioned. It had been said, in another case, the register of a birth was no proof of birth, and certainly the registry of a death was no proof that the person alleged to have died was deceased. Fletcher had been identified by the registrar as the person. He should also prove that the prisoner Lydia Sanders had lived in lodgings in the name of Emma Slack; had been disguised by a profusion of ringlets been disguised by a profusion of ringlets of very light coloured hair, and constantly were her bonnet and boa in the house. But that, notwithstanding the lightness of her ringlets, the hair brushes were found to be filled with hair perfectly black. (Laughter.) While in these lodgings she was visited by Fletcher, and by her sister, Mrs. Dorey, and her identity would be proved beyo a doubt. Afer the transfer, Mrs. Sanders went back no more to the lodgings at which she had been living as Emma Slack, but went to her sister, Mrs. Dorey, and subsequently, after being seen with a large sum of money in her possession, returned sum of money in her possession, returned home to Bristol. At the Bank she had passed as Emma Slack, the sister of Anne Slack, represented as deceased. The learned counsel then went through a history of the circumstances attending examination of Barbar at the Man examination of Barbar at the Mansion-house, and the subsequent implication of Fletcher, after he had been produced as the person who had introduced Emma Slack; and after some further observa-tions, left it for the jury to say whether Barber had guilty knowledge of, and was a participator in, the acts of the other prisoners.

A number of witnesses were then called, I the greater part of whose evidence was a recapitulation of what has been already Clarkson.-I am the daughter of a tailor, court-road; in the month of March last year, I recollect the prisoner, Mrs. Dorey, coming to the house to take lodgings for a lady who was coming out of the country concerning some law business; this was about Thursday, the 9th; she said she could not give a reference, but offered to pay a week in advance; she said she would ne again in about two hours, but I went occasion; this was in the middle of the day; on the next morning I saw the lodger; the prisoner, Mrs. Sauders, is the person; she called herself Miss Slack; she remained three weeks and a day, or a month and a day; she left on the 7th day of April; Mrs. Dorey came to fetch her away; during the whole time she was called Miss Slack; Mrs. Dorey came two or three times a week to see her, in the evening; Mrs. Sanders had flaxen ringlets at that time; I attended to her bedroom, and perceived that there was dark hair in the comb; she always were a bonnet in the house; Mrs. Dorey always asked for Miss Slack; I did not know Mrs. Dorey's name at that time; Mrs. Sanders told me if any body came but her lawyer, I was to say she did not live there; a dark gentleman called, whom she said was her lawyer; he came once or twice a week; I do not know him.

WEDNESDAY. The Jurors having answered to their names, the evidence in support of the pro-secution was proceeded with.

William Philpotts, stock-broker, de-posed to Lydia Sanders having been in-troduced to him by Barber, as Emma Slack, on the 7th of April, when the witness pro-cured a transfer of £3500 stock, standing in the name of Emma Slack, which he sold. At the opening of the Court on this day Mr. James, on the part of Mrs. Dorey, begged to state that she wished to washdraw her plea of "Not Guilty" and put in a plea of "Guilty." Perhaps he was not sceeding his duty in asking the Jury to commend her to mercy.

Mr. Justice Williams said he could not nterfere with the Jury. He was sure that the verdict in the first case that the verdict in the arist case would not influence them. The learned Judge asked Mr. Erle if he had any objection to the course proposed by Mr. James?

Mr. Erle replied in the negative, and the plea of not guilty on the part of Mrs. Dorey was then withdrawn, and a plea of guilty was entered.

Mr. Wilkins addressed the Court of sebalf of Barber, and Mr. Greaves for

Mr. Erle having replied on the part of the prosecution, the learned Judge summed up. The jury then retired, and on their return brought in a verdict of Guilty against Barber, Fletcher, and Lydia Sanders. On hearing the verdict Barber exclaimed "I am not guilty, my lord: Mr. Fletcher knows that I am not guilty." The Court then adjourned.

The Judges Mr. Baron Gurney, Mr. Justice Williams, and Mr. Justice Maule, took their seats on the bench shortly after ten o'clock and the prisoner, William ders, was then placed at the bar.

Mr. Baron Gurney then addressed the sisoner Fletcher, and said, he had been ffence of forgery and fraud, and his station offence of forgery and Iraud, and his station in his aggravated his offence. But a short time before his hie would have been forfeited, and under all circumstances the Court felt it had no alternative but to pass on him the full sentence now appointed by the law, which was, that he be trans-by the law, which was, that he be trans-ported for life.

The Learned Judge next addressed Barber, and said that after a full inquiry he had been convicted of uttering a forged will. The jury had found him Guilty, and the Learned Judge who had tried him (Mr. Justice Williams) was perfectly satisied of the propriety of that verdict; and what had passed that day had in no wise altered the opinion of the Court. The sentence therefore was that he be also transported for his life.

Fletcher next addressed the Court, and said he had only acted from instructions and information he had received from Christmas, (the Bank clerk), and he himself had instructed Barber. He assured the Court that there were other parties more guilty than himself; and he believed the person to whom he referred (Christmas) had given information relative to other persons in the Bank, but whose names he should not mention. very sorry for the position of Mr. Barber, but he could only say, that when he had deceived Barber, he had been himself deceived.

The learned Judge then said, the cases of the other prisoners were very different. Sanders and his wife, from their position in life, might have been made the of more designing persons, and Dorey had made all the atonement in her power by giving information to the Government, which in all probability materially aided their inquiries. The sentence of the Court therefore was, that William Sanders be transported for seven years; and that Lydia Sanders and Georgiana Dorey be severally imprisoned and kept to hard la-
